

Log in | Subscribe now

Israel News | All

Temple Mount | Netanyahu | McCain | Assad - Trump | 'Alt-light' vs ADL | Israel-Syria

Log in

Israeli Army Reveals Undisclosed Air Force Base

Saudi Police Arrest G Caused Uproar Over Snapchat

Trending Now

Home

Young Woman Recounts Her Escape From Israeli Cult

Testimony of physical, sexual and emotional abuse led to an investigation resulting in police raid. Cult leader and two others arrested.

Tamar Rotem | Aug 05, 2011 1:25 AM

7 | Tweet | 25 | Zen | Subscribe

In mid-May, a young woman called the Israel Center for Cult Victims, asking that her identity be kept secret. "I live in a Jerusalem collective," she told center director Rachel Lichtenstein. "I'm not certain, but I think it's a cult."

That call led to the exposure of the Jerusalem cult whose ringleader, D., was indicted yesterday along with two other members.

Cult leader D. during his arraignment earlier this week. Credit: Olivier Fitoussi

In several meetings with center staffers, the caller, in her early twenties, revealed the story of her life in D.'s house. She later agreed to complain to the police. Her detailed testimony about the physical, sexual and emotional abuse inflicted on the household's women and children led to an investigation that ended with the police and

Support Israel's democracy Support HAARETZ 25% off for one year Subscribe

Support Israel's democracy
Support HAARETZ

25% off
 for one year

Subscribe

Breaking News: Temple Mount: Clashes Between Israeli Forces, Palestinians as Army Preps for Massive Friday Protests

a year and a half as his intended wife (he already had six).

"Even a normative person can fall into the net of manipulative people who speak about truth," Savir said. "But she was an 18-year-old girl who, after her parents' divorce, was seeking her way in life. She was fertile ground for persuasion."

On a trip to Jerusalem, near the Calatrava Bridge where D.'s wives and children begged for alms and expounded on his teachings, one of the women approached her, having apparently been ordered by D. to recruit more women.

"Initially, she knew only the woman who approached her, not the other members of the group," Lichtenstein said. "The woman exposed her to Bratslav [Hasidic] teachings, to the writings disseminated by group members, and she slowly warmed to the idea. Then she was told about the leader, whom the women viewed as a kind of tzaddik [righteous man] and prophet. At this stage, she hadn't yet met him and didn't know he was married to several women."

She began visiting the house, but "only once she was ensnared was she brought to live in it," Lichtenstein said.

Yet even though she was under D.'s spell, "she had some kind of critical sense that caused her not to marry him, even though he constantly raised the issue," Lichtenstein added.

Savir said the gap in their ages - D. was 55 to her 18 - made him realize that persuading her would take time. D. didn't even sleep with her, differentiating her from the other women, Savir added.

It took the complainant, whom Savir described as utterly normative and quite impressive, hours to tell him about her experiences in D.'s house.

"It was shocking," he said.

First, she was cut off from her job and family, then came a "lengthy process of brainwashing and deification" of D. by his wives, who portrayed him as the direct heir of Rabbi Nachman, the founder of Bratslav Hasidism. Eventually, aided by what the complainant described as D.'s charisma, she came to believe this, "and by virtue of this faith, he was able to control, dominate, administer beatings, threaten, humiliate, demand confessions, and rape," Savir said.

What finally caused her to leave, Savir continued, is that "she started being beaten. But even before then, she had witnessed acts of abuse and sexual licentiousness.

"One day, she was subjected to half an hour of [D.'s] blows. She saw him whip one of the women with a rod, and also witnessed incidents like a woman who dared to nod off while he was speaking being put

Support Israel's democracy

Support HAARETZ

25% off
 for one year

Subscribe

Support Israel's democracy
Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

The result was blind obedience to D.'s every wish - making the complainant's decision to escape even more remarkable.

Everyone in the household was convinced that D. was a prophet, Savir continued. That enabled him to threaten that dire things would befall anyone who disobeyed him, and to claim obedience would bring spiritual enlightenment. The complete absence of all contact with other people, especially family, bolstered his rule, as did collective participation in punishments: "If the punishment was a beating, they would all join in."

The complainant's escape was not an all at once happening: She made several attempts that ended with her return, after D. sent his women to entice her back.

"The enticements were spiritual," Lichtenstein said. "He would tell her, 'don't forfeit your salvation. Salvation will be here any minute.' That's something that happens in all cults."

After her family tried to remove her from the cult, D. also threatened that terrible things would happen to them, Savir said.

About six months ago, she finally managed to escape for good. Now she is starting to rebuild her life: She is in counseling and has already begun to work. D.'s arrest and indictment have encouraged her.

But she's still afraid to reveal her name.

Tamar Rotem

Send me email alerts for new articles by Tamar Rotem

Send me email alerts

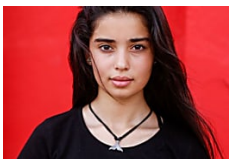

You Might also Like

Recommended by

Haaretz | News

Netanyahu launches blistering attack on EU: 'Their behavior toward

Haaretz | Life

Meet the first Israeli Muslim teen TV star - and her transgender colleague

Haaretz | Jewish World

The story of Senegal's hated, reclusive 'Jewish' community

Support Israel's democracy

Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

Support Israel's democracy
Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

Look Closer - Insane
Historic Photos

Comments

Sign in to join the conversation.

Sort comments by Newest first

Expand all

- 14

Shred | 2011-08-05 19:01 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Haaretz, watch your headlines!
- 13

Deran | 2011-08-05 18:58 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

this is the people palestinians must make peace with? (no content)

JJ | 2011-08-05 18:34 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Don't be so naive

@George | 2011-08-05 14:01 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

I think Deran is just making fun of all those many posters who always jump up to say "These are who israel is supposed to make peace with?" -- whenever an incident in Occupied Palestine occurs

George | 2011-08-05 00:47 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Oh don't be stupid
- 12

Arie | 2011-08-05 18:28 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Comparison
- 11

Jake | 2011-08-05 17:38 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

lol
- 10

Common Sense | 2011-08-05 17:15 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Posts prove once again that some prejudiced people can't wait to use isolated instances of evil people (pedophiles, murderers, psychopaths, abusers, etc) to condemn the object group of their prejudice. These acts happen all over this planet and amongst all groups. (no content)
- 9

Df | 2011-08-05 15:24 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Israeli cult ?

J Barber | 2011-08-05 15:50 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Scientologists say no more

Arnold-Canada | 2011-08-05 15:24 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

Df

Arnold-Canada | 2011-08-05 15:16 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

GC

D. | 2011-08-05 10:30 ▲ 0 ▼ 0

It's an Israeli cult because....gasp...it's in Israel. If it

Support Israel's democracy

Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

Support Israel's democracy
Support HAARETZ

25% off
 for one year

Subscribe

- | | | |
|---|---|---------|
| 8 | Ralph 2011-08-05 15:23
 Breslev | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 7 | Arkady 2011-08-05 15:21
 Radical secularist trying to remove the religious again? (no content) | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 6 | Norman 2011-08-05 15:15
 This whole issue makes for good headlines | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 5 | Dani.A 2011-08-05 13:55
 Most of Israeli rightist parties are made on cult :Likud had and has the cult of Begin,Israel Beiteinu is built on lieberman cult,still more rightist are on Kahana cult. (no content) | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 4 | Solovey Razboynik 2011-08-05 07:43
 Cults | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 3 | Megacephalus - Berlin 2011-08-05 07:23
 "growing up in a religious household" Didi 2011-08-05 15:23
 Yes.A healthy one. | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 2 | This Is A Man 2011-08-05 07:04
 "What finally caused her to leave... is that "she started being beaten. But even before then, she had witnessed acts of abuse" | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |
| 1 | Ky 2011-08-05 00:23
 Who are these people? | ▲ 0 ▼ 0 |

Load more

Gone Viral

Support Israel's democracy

Support HAARETZ

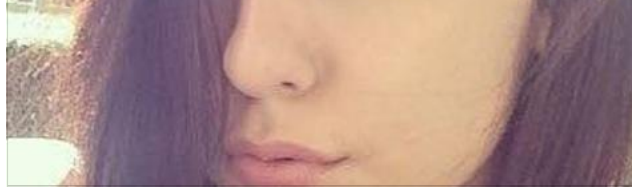

25% off
 for one year

Subscribe

Support Israel's democracy
Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

Israeli Christian charged with murdering his teen daug...

HAARETZ.COM

304 116 710

Trending Now

Temple Mount Crisis: At Least 22 Wounded in Latest Clashes Between Israeli Forces, Palestinians

Netanyahu's Message to the World: Accept Israel as It Is, Occupier and Settler

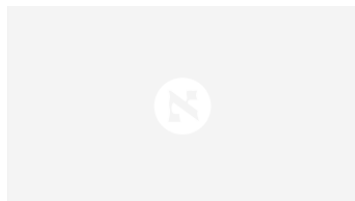

Temple Mount Crisis Shows Who's Really Calling the Shots at the Site

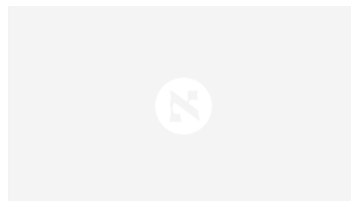

The Jewish Subtext Behind Linda Sarsour and CNN's Jake Tapper's Twitter Battle

Trending Now

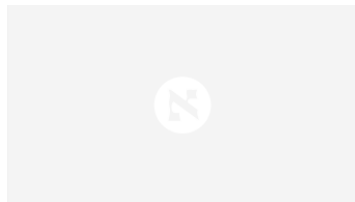

EU Dismisses Netanyahu's Euro-bashing: Israel Must Respect Humanitarian Law

By Barak Ravid (Budapest) | 12 Hours Ago
5

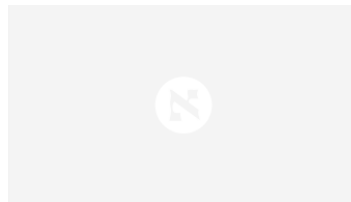

Far-left French Leader Slams Macron for Accepting French Complicity in Holocaust

By Haaretz | Yesterday 7

Revealed: Churchill's Cover Up of Elaborate Nazi Plot to Take Over the British Monarchy

Analysis // Israel Escalates Threats Against Iran

By Amos Harel | 9 Hours Ago 3

Support Israel's democracy

Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

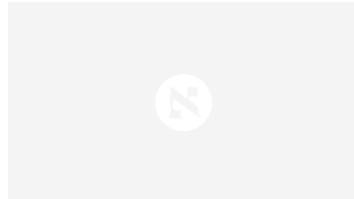

Support Israel's democracy
Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe

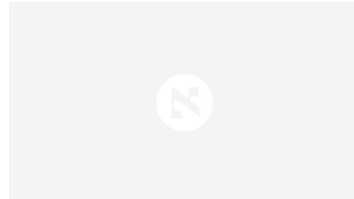

Dozens Suspected of Cooperating With Israel

By Yotam Berger | 6 Hours Ago

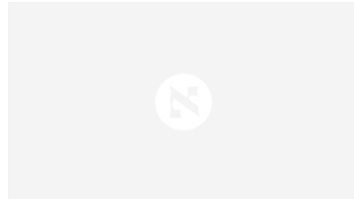

New Israeli Housing Plan to Cut Off Ramallah From East Jerusalem

By Yotam Berger | 17 Hours Ago 2

Netanyahu's Euro-bashing Is Politically Savvy, Diplomatically Demented

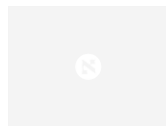

By Chemi Shalev / Analysis | 9 Hours Ago 5

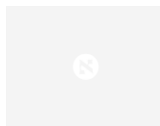

'I Wish I Was Ethical, We're So Very Unethical, But I'm a Creep'

By Gideon Levy / Opinion | 20 Hours Ago 4

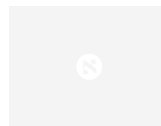

Security & Aviation

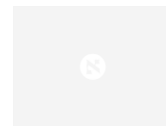

Israel Struck Hezbollah Targets in Syria Dozens of Times, Netanyahu Reveals

Israeli Army Reveals Existence of Previously Undisclosed Air Force Base

Syria Cease-fire: For Israel, the Good News May Lead to Bad News

'Surgical' Strike in North Korea Could Swiftly Turn to Carnage

Support Israel's democracy

Support HAARETZ

25% off
for one year

Subscribe