

METRO

Landlord accused of filming maid naked sued now by au pair

By Josh Saul

June 19, 2015 | 1:46am

Eli Kadoch
Gregory P. Mango

The creepy Upper West Side landlord who was busted for secretly filming his live-in maid while she was naked has been sued by an au pair for doing the same thing to her, according to a new federal lawsuit.

Olga Kunina sued Eli Kadoch, who was busted and pleaded not guilty to 67 counts of unlawful surveillance, and his brother Michael Kadoe, for using spy cameras to film her as she showered and walked around in her underwear in the apartment where she stayed in their building.

ADVERTISING

“The videos included Ms. Kunina using the commode, shower, undressing in the restroom, and engaged in sexual activities for [her] own personal pleasure,” the Manhattan federal court lawsuit states.

“These two young ladies were trying to do their jobs and these two creeps were filming everything they did,” Kunina attorney Joseph Mure said.

Kadoch has been charged with filming both Kunina and live-in maid Aksana Kuzmitskaya.

An attorney for Kadoch didn’t respond to a message seeking comment. Kadoe didn’t return a call for comment left at his home.

FILED UNDER MANHATTAN SUPREME COURT, UPPER WEST SIDE

Recommended by