LAKEWOOD, NJ — A Lakewood man has been charged with distributing child pornography after authorities traced the activity to his home, authorities said Thursday.

Gershon Biegeleisen, 28, of Lakewood, was arrested Thursday at his home on charges of second-degree distribution of child pornography and third-degree possession of child pornography, Ocean County Prosecutor Joseph D. Coronato and Lakewood Police Chief Gregory Meyer announced.

The arrest is the result of a referral from the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children through the Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force indicating someone within Ocean County had downloaded and was sharing images of prepubescent children engaged in sexual acts, said Al Della Fave, spokesman for the Ocean County Prosecutor's Office.

The prosecutor's office's High Tech Crimes Unit detectives investigated and that led to a search warrant being executed at a home on Columbus Avenue in Lakewood, Della Fave said. Evidence collected at the scene led to Assistant Prosecutor Kristin Pressman approving the charges, he said.

The Ocean County Prosecutor's High Tech Crime Unit, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) and the Lakewood Police Department teamed up in the case, Della Fave said.
